The Battle Ground Of Reason In Memorium

TERRELL W. AYCOCK

When Terrell W. Aycock died there passed into silence one whom nature and the graces of immortality had endowed with an exuberance of those finer qualities that leave their monuments like shafts of light to enrich the memory of his fellows.

"There are moments of life that we never forget,
 Which brightens and brightens, as time steals away;
 They give a new charm to the happiest lot
 And they shine on the gloom of the loneliest day."

The writer had known Terrell W. Aycock less than a decade of years but they were full years, testing his qualities in the crucible of observation where many fail. I saw him in sunshine and in shadow, in laughter and in tears; in life's high buoyancy and in periods of sober reflection, and his philosophy was tribute to the deep, moving purposes of a life that was open to all men in frank, full rebellion against wrong, firm in convictions that were deep, but withal a man charitable, with a tenderness of sympathy and tolerance to all.

Terrell Winston Aycock was the son of Bryant F. and Sarah Winston Aycock, his paternal grand parents being Wm. Terrell Aycock and nee Mary Cotton, the former of Irish descent and the latter of English and both among the pioneers who pushed back the borders of the wild lands in Alabama when Southern civilization began to spread.

Bryant F. Aycock, father of Terrell W. Aycock, was born and reared in Alabama and was a graduate of the University of Alabama located at Tuscaloosa. Lured by the romance and the adventures of the day he looked with interest to the far off prairies of Texas and came here in the fifties and located at Caldwell, Burleson county.

In 1854, Bryant Aycock, the pioneer met and married Sarah Winston, daughter of John L. and Ann W. Winston of that county, but formerly, also of Alabama. John L. Winston was a brother of Governor A. A. Winston of Alabama.

Bryant F. Aycock, father of deceased served as clerk of the District Court of Burleson County, read law, was admitted to the bar and began the practice of his profession in Caldwell. When the war came he left a large practice and entered the Confederate army in 1861 and in the following year died in the service of the states he loved, at Bowling Green, Kentucky. He was an honest, brave and intelligent man, good citizen, kind husband and indulgent father. He was a Democrat in politics, an ardent supporter of the cause of the Confederacy a popular gentleman, zealous Mason. His life was one in which his descendants take pride and these qualities had much to do with the lives they lived and the esteem they commanded among friends.

Bryant F. Aycock and wife were the parents of three children, Terrell Winston, the subject of this sketch, Ola and Bryant F. Aycock, Jr. His widow later married A. D. Cooper of Milam County and to them were born three girls as follows: Mrs. J. P. Gott of Marlin; Mrs. C. W. Meyers, Rosebud; Mrs. Lon Tipps of Canadian. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cooper are now deceased.

Terrell W. Aycock was born in Burleson county, Texas, February 26, 1856 but was reared chiefly in Milam County, his mother having moved here shortly after the beginning of the Civil War and made her home with her parents for some years.

Terrell W. Aycock was educated in the University of Georgetown, Texas, and after his marriage, which event occurred in 1881, he located on a farm about mid way from Cameron to Rockdale, where he resided for a number of years and devoted his energies to agriculture, later moving to Cameron where he spent his remaining years happily amid the peace of his family and the love and esteem of his friends.

Mr. Aycock was married in 1881 to Miss Ann Rogers, daughter of W. F. and Sarah Rogers, of Milam County

CITY PRIMARY TO BE HELD HERE IN FEBRUARY

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE WILL CALL TIME FOR FEBRUARY BALLOTING

The Democratic Executive Committee will soon call an election to be held in February at which time three aldermen are to be nominated and elected in April.

T. F. Hardy, chairman of the committee, has been ill for several days and unable to call the meeting but it is expected that he will be up in a day or two and will convene the committee. The committee is composed of Mr. Hardy, chairman, S. M. Burns, J. W. Coleman, Elwood Cammer and Sam Hefley.

At the last meeting of the City Council the council passed an order for the April election and this notice will be printed in time.

The aldermen elected last April for one year and whose terms expire are Wm. Rogers, W. O. Triggs and Logan Green. The February primary will be held to nominate three aldermen and they are to be elected and qualified in April.

The friends of these aldermen hope they will offer again so the council can carry out its program of liquidating the city debts and arrange for the program of street building in 1928.

COMMERCIAL CLUB BUYS THOROUGHBRED HOGS

W. S. LAMKIN FURNISHES 25 GILTS WITH GOOD BREEDING

The Commercial Club has obtained 25 registered gilts from W. S. Lamkin to be re-sold to farmers.

The club failed to obtain the original car as announced and is making an effort to produce hogs for the farmers.

J. W. Coleman, president of the club was given permission to purchase these hogs and they will be sold to farmers.

Other hog breeders have offered gilts and it is practically certain that a wide distribution will be given to the farmers. All who desire hogs should see Mr. Coleman at once.

There were born to this union six children.

Terrell W. Aycock to his friends was a source of inspiration. Refined in manner, passionately fond of discussion, ardent student and incessant reader, he was well informed. In the years that came to him through the span of life, he applied much time to the mastery of literature and to the study of civil government in which he excelled most men, for his conceptions were fundamental, embracing always the liberty that is cardinal with American patriots. He was strong in his convictions and never yielded to the popular side of any question. When his policies met adversity at the ballot he would smile away his defeat and reaffirm his convictions. God grant him recognition in the Great Forum where men are loved and respected for what they are rather than for what they had not!

He loved his nation and his state and above all his Southland. His life was one continuous devotion to the ideals of his Confederacy, and he kept alive and fresh in the memory of his father's sacrifice all the glory that immortalized the heroes of the South and the deathless principles for which they gave their last full measure of devotion.

I knew him and loved him for the courage that I found in his heart, for the intelligence that I found in his mind and the rich philosophy I found in his soul. He spoke to me often of the beautiful things, of God and the Savior of Mankind to whom in loving humility he fastened his faith. Surely he is remembered in the great enrollment, for the Grace of Him who died that his people might inherit the Kingdom not made with hands will trace away his faults to "remember them no more against him."

Out of his love for public discussion he gave this column its name and this column is dedicated to his memory.

"My Death Has Been Exaggerated Too." Says Judge English

Judge Ed. F. English begins to appreciate the situation in which Mark Twain found himself in London when confronted with the report that he had died.

Judge English meets the report in much the same manner. In fact, as he sat in his office Tuesday he said: "My death has been exaggerated too."

For the past two years Mrs. English has received invitations to Masonic festivities at San Antonio, a program enclosed showing the ceremonies are dedicated to the memory of Ed. F. English, deceased of Cameron.

Evidently this is meant for another for Judge English is not a Mason. Judge says he is very much alive despite the repeated ceremonies arranged in his memory.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS TO SAVE MEMBERSHIP

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN ACTIVITIES OF LOCAL LODGE

In announcing the two months campaign to save membership, the Supreme Chancellor is following a program adopted by the Supreme Lodge at the recent session according to Jake Posey, Chancellor Commander of Milam Lodge No. 125. The effort will not be confined to reaching the members of any lodge who still live in the city where they became members, but will, through a clearing house established in each state and province, make an effort to reclaim those who have lost contact with the Order by moving to other states and cities. The Grand Keeper of Records and Seal will report to lodges the names of such former Pythians living in the jurisdiction of the Lodge, the reports being compiled from data supplied by every keeper of records and seal in such Grand Domain.

Under this plan the master of finance and the keeper of records and seal of each lodge are the key men. They will supply the local committee with data regarding every resident member who has been lost to the Order and the names and last known addresses of those who have moved away. By using this check Supreme Lodge Officers expect to save fifty per cent of the losses sustained during the last five years.

Among the activities of the Order expected to interest the man who has lost contact in recent years, is the concerted movement over the Supreme Domain to establish Orphan's Homes and homes for the aged Pythians and his wife. Eighteen such homes are now being operated and more than 3,000 children and adults are being cared for under grand lodge jurisdiction. Another feature is the broad and liberal provisions offered the Pythian membership for protection of the family through membership in the Insurance Department. This branch of the Order has recently announced seven new plans of protection offering exceptionally liberal options for cash loans, surrender values, double indemnity and total disability benefits to insured members. The Department, now nearing its fiftieth year has paid to widows and orphans of members more than $3,500 daily for the half century. It is recognized by the parent body as the home saving station of the Order.

ROBERT BLANKENSHIP DEAD FROM INJURIES

FORMER CAMERON BOY KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT IN HOUSTON

Houston Chronicle

The Harris County Grand Jury Friday began investigation into the deaths of three school children killed in Houston in the past three days.

New impetus was given the drive to curb reckless driving with the report of the fourth fatality when Robert M. Blankenship, 19, at 1218 Asbury, died Thursday night from injuries received in an automobile accident.

The grand jury will question the twin sister of Marjorie Blouin who was killed Tuesday and also investigate the deaths of George Fernandez and Fay Smith, it was said. Three of the children were struck by cars while walking. Blankenship was injured fatally in a collision of cars. A probe of Blankenship's death probably will start Monday, it was stated.

The youth suffered internal injuries Tuesday when an automobile in which he was riding collided with another at Waugh drive and Buffalo drive.

C. S. Botts, 301 Webster, driver of the car that collided with Blankenship's truck, gave a statement to Raymond Garfinkle, stenographer of the district attorney's office, as follows:

"I was driving down Waugh Drive toward Washington and the man I ran into was coming out of Buffalo Drive. His name is R. M. Blankenship 1218 Asbury. He was in a Ford Truck coming at a pretty good rate of speed with a load of asphalt for the paving of Buffalo Drive.

"We collided a little beyond the intersection. I was traveling between 20 and 25 miles an hour and was slowing down for Buffalo Drive.

"I turned so that he could get around me. Instead he turned with me and we collided. It turned his car over and threw him out, cutting his nose and lip.

"I stopped right away, put him in my car and took him to the Jefferson Davis Hospital, saw that he was attended to and reported to the police station and then here (the district attorney's office). My wife was with me, no one else witnessed the accident that I know of."

Chief of Police Tom Goodson announced he put into service Thursday night a squad of 16 men who will patrol the residence sections in eight automobiles, watching out for reckless motorists, burglars and other law violators.

He announced earlier Thursday that he would appear before the City Council and ask for an ordinance to require license from all persons who drive automobiles in the city. A third conviction on charges of violating the traffic laws would call for the revocation of the license, the police head stated.

Funeral services for Mr. Blankenship will be held at the family residence, 1218 Asbury at 3 p. m., Saturday. Interment will be in Glenwood Cemetery under the direction of the Morse Company, undertakers.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Blankenship; four brothers, A. F. of Louann, Ark., B. M. and A. B. and Arnold all of Houston; and eight sisters, Mrs. G. M. Campbell and Miss Dorothy Blankenship of Houston; Mrs. M. A. Edmunds, Mrs. J. E. Walker and Mrs. Marvin Kirk, all of Cameron; Mrs. A. J. Segler of Rosebud; Mrs. H. A. Jenkins of Lorrann, Ark. and Mrs. R. K. Carnes of San Marcos.

The Blouin child died from injuries received Wednesday noon when she was hit by a car at Heights Boulevard and Fifth Street, as she was on her way home from school. The Fernandez boy was run down by a transfer truck in front of the old Southern Pacific station on North San Jacinto Street Tuesday. Miss Smith was crushed under a truck which collided with another machine in the 8600 block on Washington Avenue Tuesday.

Mrs. J. M. Williamson returned to Cameron Saturday after a delightful visit with Mrs. Fannie Norman in Thorndale.

Mrs. Emma Barron will leave for Dallas soon to make her home there with her sister.

Top Working Native Pecan Trees Make Great Yields In a Very Short Period

By O. S. GRAY
Secretary Texas Pecan Growers Association in Farm and Ranch

Not long ago I walked through a native pecan grove of possibly 1,000 native pecan trees, discussing with the owner the possibility of increasing its profitability. An examination of the grove, upon which the owner depended for his principal source of income, disclosed that out of the 1,000 or more trees in his grove there were possibly around 100 trees that were, in fact furnishing by far the greater part of his nut crop.

We passed by one tree, and he made the remark that he wished every tree in his grove would bear pecans like that one, stating that one man had contracted yearly for the production of this particular tree, no matter whether it produced ten pounds or 500 pounds, readily paying a premium above the price of common native nuts.

As he passed another tree, heavily loaded with pecans, he remarked "There's a tree that always bears a good crop whenever any tree in the country bears—I wish I had some more like it, for it's a very profitable tree."

The point that is to be made is that these things are true in all native groves throughout the pecan growing belt. It is universally recognized that they have a relatively few trees that are really and truly their profit makers year in and year out.

By top working native trees to desired varieties, we can have the trees in these native groves bearing better crops of profitable varieties. When we take a native tree and cut off its top and re-work the limbs or sprouts by budding or grafting, thereby establishing a new top, the process is known as top-working. We make use of the old trunk and roots to support our new top and save the years of time necessary to grow a good trunk and an elaborate root system.

It may safely be said that much misinformation has been published in the past dealing with the top-working of pecan trees, but this has been brought about to some extent, at least, by the fact that the practice was passing through its experimental stages. As time has passed and the results of the early efforts are meeting the test, we are able to observe enough to enable us to say that top-working has passed through its experimental stage.

Experts Save Money
Money spent for the services of an expert is money well spent. There are still so many differences of opinion in regard to some of the points that come up in top-working pecans that beginners are often confused in reading published information, and it pays to employ an experienced man—especially until such time as his helpers become proficient.

Size For Stock

It is the "size" of a tree rather than its "age" that is usually regarded as governing the working over of a tree. Age plays its most important part in determining whether or not a given tree is of proper size for its age and not a stunted tree that lacks in vigor.

It is possible to top-work any pecan tree, no matter what its size, but it seems to be the prevailing opinion among experienced operators that much time and effort are often wasted in attempting to work over the larger sized trees. Some experienced men hold that eight inches in diameter is the limit, while others set their limit as high as eighteen inches in diameter. The size of branches and type of branching of a tree has quite a bit to do with the selection of a tree for top-working, and may lead to the selection of one tree for top-working, and may lead to the selection of one tree and the reaction of another of the same diameter, as will be seen later.

When To Remove Top

It is thought that the ideal time to remove a top is just before the buds swell in the spring, but the operator will do little if any harm in beginning his work of cutting out the tops as soon as his other work will permit following the beginning of dormancy in the fall. The wisdom of this advance is apparent when we realize that it takes considerable time to remove the tops from a large number of trees.

Anyone will do well to begin topping as soon as possible after the dormant period of the tree begins, providing he has considerable work to do.

Amount Of Top To Remove

This is a moot subject—a place where "the doctors disagree." The pecan tree, when cut down, often sends up sprouts from its roots for years, especially if it is favorably situated in regard to soil and moisture, and I have seen sprouts still coming in cultivated fields that I was told had been under cultivation from twenty-five to thirty years. The fact that the pecan holds on to life so well has led to some very severe topping in the way of preparation for top-working.

Each of the earliest work consisted in cutting large trees three to five feet in diameter back to stumps ten or twelve feet in height. Although the patient did not always recover from the operation, in most instances a large number of sprouts would put out from all sides of this large stub. Certain ones would be selected for budding and the remainder would be continually removed. If grafting were to be done, several grafts would be inserted in the upper part of the stump.

Such operations, by exposing large cut surfaces to the winds, leave wounds that frequently never heal and that allow the various rot fungi to enter the hearts of the trees. Water often accumulates in rotted hollows and kills the trees. This severe cutting also weakens trees to such an extent that borers will attack the trunks.

Common practice has resolved itself into choosing smaller trees for top-working, avoiding large wounds, and cutting down much of the expense necessary in working large trees where scaffolding is often necessary for the workmen.

Some have advocated the removal of not over two-thirds the top of a tree at any one time, stating the necessity of leaving a part of the top for carrying on the life functions of the tree. The writer, however, at this time makes a practice of removing the entire top, following the rule laid down in the following paragraph for this work, preferring to have the operation over at one working, and after an experience of some eight years, prefers this method as the usual procedure.

My own experience has led to the adoption of a rule to not cut limbs larger than four inches in diameter—and preferably two or three inches. If I come across a large tree, I find that I can apply this rule by going out far enough on the limbs to find this diameter, and by a casual inspection and mental calculation of the number of buds that would be required, I soon know whether I want to tackle it or not. I have found it very desirable and satisfactory to select trees with a diameter of six to eight inches. Only a reasonable number of buds is required for a tree of such size—it can be worked from the ground by using a stepladder—and the root system is usually large enough to grow rapidly a top of good size.

Save the Framework

It takes nature many years to grow the framework of a tree say twelve inches in diameter, and by going out far enough on the limbs to cut them at a diameter of two to four inches, the non-bearing framework of the tree is largely preserved and it only takes a few years to completely restore the young bearing branches. This, to my mind, completely overbalances the expense of inserting whatever extra buds may be necessary.

Properly Shaped Trees

An article appearing in this paper several months ago called attention to the fact that comparatively few growers were giving any attention to the proper shaping of young trees, and advising the use of the type of tree known as the "modified leader." In the selection of trees of around six inches in diameter for top-working, the operator is usually enabled to build the general framework of his tree throughout five to ten feet before doing away with the leaders. This will give a tree highly adapted to spraying practices should they ever be necessary for the control of insects such as the nut case-bearer.

The best way to learn how to top-work is to go with an experienced man. It is almost impossible to lay down rules because every tree is an individual problem calling for its own solution. Remember that it is cheaper for you to pay what may seem to be an exorbitant price to you in order to secure a competent man rather than to have the work done free by a man who may give you wrong ideas.

Survivors of Ghastly Tragedy Paint Vivid Eye - Witness Pictures

Greeted by a tense anxious, sorrowing crowd, four survivors of the tragedy which snuffed out the lives of ten of Baylor's most stalwart young men at Round Rock Saturday arrived in the city from Taylor about six o'clock last night.

All four of them were suffering severely from shock; practically every one had an injury of consequence. Yet none could think of himself, the thoughts of each dwelt on that morgue in Taylor where lay still, cold bodies of their comrades.

Weir Washam, Louis Slade, Dave Cheavens and Keifer Strickland were the four who arrived last night. They were immediately escorted in automobiles to their respective homes.

Strickland was pained by a hard blow over the head and by a gash in the cheek. Slade was suffering from a heavy blow in the back; Cheavens was badly shocked and had minor scratches and bruises; and Washam, pained by numerous bruises, was laboring under a terrific mental strain.

Slade Recounts Ghastly Details

Speaking slowly and sorrowingly, Louis Slade, star center of the Baylor basketball team, and an end on the football team, choked out the following vivid eye-witness account of the accident:

"The train swept through the bus just as you would sweep through a room," said Louis. "It cleaned out the seats, strewing them along the track for a half mile or more and dumping the chassis and motor, twisted into wreckage, down the track about 200 yards.

"When I saw the train it was not more than 75 feet away. It was speeding along at the rate of about 50 miles an hour.

"The glasses of the bus were all up and they were coated with mist. It had been raining, too, and mud was spattered over the windshield and over the side glasses.

Boys Were Paralyzed

"We were paralyzed. Joe Potter, who was driving, slammed on the brakes when he saw the train, and then saw he could not stop. Next he

KELLY'S LAST ACT SAVED LIFE OF A COMRAD

Great as he was when he crossed the goal line on the grid iron, Clyde "Abe" Kelley was even greater when he crossed the line of death.

His last act was to save the life of a comrade.

In that split-second ensuing between the instant Kelley glimpsed the approaching train and the smash-up occurred, Abe had time to think of the life of his long-time "buddy" Weir Washam.

Washam was sitting next to the door in the rear of the bus.

Just as the train crashed, Kelley pushed Washam through the door.

A moment later, mangled on that monster of steel, his crushed body was tossed aside in the ditch, "finis" written across his career.

Then dazed, Washam, staggered down the track. He was the first to reach Kelley, and his hands lifted Kelley from the ditch.

Comrades in boyhood, comrades in high school, and comrades in College, they were comrades to the end.

cut the wheels to the left—we were approaching at right angles—but found that he could not clear the track.

"Then he twisted the steering wheel and tried to dart straight across as a last resort. The train struck us on the right rear side.

"Three of the five boys who were sitting in the back seat of the bus were caught on the cowcatcher of the train and carried down the track for 200 yards.

"They picked Abe, Jack Castellaw and Bob Hailey off the cowcatcher several hundred yards down the track. All three had been killed instantly. Sam Dillow, one of the others who was one of the others on the back seat of the bus, was killed instantly, being brushed aside by the locomotive like a straw.

"Weir Washam, the fifth boy on the back seat, jumped a second before the train hit Kelley was right behind him and was ready to spring just as the locomotive ploughed into us."

Slade said that he was riding in the front seat with coach Ralph Wolf and Joe Potter, the driver.

"It was right at 12 o'clock," said Louis. "I know because I had just asked Mr. Wolf the time.

"We had just passed thru Round Rock. The double crossing is at the station, just as you leave the town on the way to Austin.

Boxcars Obstructed View

Empty boxcars on a siding and a little house obstructed our view. None of us saw the train until we were right on the track. Then it hit us before we had time to think.

"The train was going north.

"Had we just had time to think, many of the boys in the truck could have jumped," Louis said.

"In the short time we had, though, we could not get the doors open and those that escaped were simply luckily knocked out of the bus.

Slade declared that he was struggling with the catch on the front door when the crash came. The impact propelled him through the door to the side of the track.

"I was dazed," he said.

"The others were knocked to the right and left, and three, as I said, were carried, on the cowcatcher. One boy, I don't know which one, had his head cut off. Most of their bodies were horribly mangled.

"The train backed up and took us all to Taylor. We could see pieces of the truck, bits of the wicker lounge chairs with which it was fitted, and other bits of wreckage for a quarter of a mile up the track.

"Most of the boys died instantly. Some of them died on the way to Taylor."

Washam Gives Vivid Version Of Experience

The writer accompanied Little Weir Washam to the South End fire station where the lad had spent many a night with his friend, Clyde "Abe" Kelley. Washam, broken hearted, sat down upon the bed of his former friend and pal and related the tragic story of the day.

Washam was sitting on the back seat of the bus with Abe Kelley, Bob Hailey, Jimmy Walker and Sam Dillow. Joe Potter was driving the bus and the boys were laughing and talking of first one thing, then another. Weir was looking toward the front of the bus as the car neared the railroad crossing. A box car was stationed on the tracks, which possibly obstructed the view of the driver. He did not see the train coming until it was too late. Washam saw the train just before the bus reached the crossing. The window beside him was half way open. He dived through it, falling to the slippery muddy ground on his chest. He was falling toward the train, which was rushing madly, 50 miles an hour, down the tracks. He grabbed the mud, burying his hands deeply into the earth and succeeded in stopping himself within three feet of the flying wheels of the express.

Landing himself safely on the ground Washam looked up just in time to see the train crash into the bus, hitting the very spot from where he jumped. Kelly was in the act of leaping from the train as his fellow companion had done when the oncoming express met him squarely in the face. Every boy who had seconds before sat beside Washam in the bus was instantly killed.

The train passed on and was a quarter of a mile down the tracks before it came to a complete stop. Washam, only slightly injured jumped up and raced after the train, looking hopefully for Kelley. Louis Slade was the first one he saw and with Slade began a search. But he did not find his comrade until he had worked his way to the front of the train and there, lying dead, was his life-long friend and playmate. To the left of the breathless body of Kelley lay another of his friends, Robert Hailey, a star athlete and a man in the truest sense of the word. How horrible; how pathetic.

But these were not the only two who were dead; there were eight others, and every one of them was close to Washam, as every one of them was close to every sportsman in this city. Jimmy Walker, Bob Hannah, Sam Dillow, Abe Kelley, William Winchester, Jack Castellaw, Ivey Foster, Merle Dudley, Will Murray, Bob Hailey; not a day has passed since the opening of school in September that the names of these stalwart sons of old Baylor have not passed through the lips of citizens here and citizens in the boy's own home town. They will continue to be talked of, but they will not be seen until a later day. God has made His choice and "Our lives are in His hands. Who said, 'A whole I planned.'"

Speeding Stopped In Vicinity of Cameron School Buildings

Special Deputy Dan Lunsford is receiving the plaudits of the patrons of the school for his work in restricting speeding by the school campus.

Attention to this menace was called some time ago and the city marshal has delegated Mr. Lunsford for special duty of catching speeding motorists in the vicinity of the schools in order to protect the school children. Mr. Lunsford made a number of arrests and has otherwise abated the danger.

Driving cars in the streets leading to the Yoe High School by the Ada Henderson building has been prohibited and now the children are safe. Residents near the school appreciate the work of Mr. Lunsford.

If the City Council will show the same interest in the violations of the speeding ordinance in the vicinity of the old grammar school the entire citizenship will have been served and the children going to the old school will have the same measure of protection as given at the other place.

FRANK NORRIS ACQUITTED OF MURDER OF CHIPPS

AFTER ONE HOUR JURY SETS FUNDAMENTALIST FREE—WOMEN SHOUT PRAISE

Court Room, Austin, Tex., Jan. 25.—Dr. J. Frank Norris, fundamentalist Baptist pastor of Fort Worth, tonight stepped for the third time from a court room a free man.

He was acquitted by a jury in Travis county district court for murdering Dexter E. Chipps, wholesale lumber man of Ft. Worth whom he slew in his church office on the afternoon of last July 17.

There were tears of joy and also tears of another kind from other eyes when the brief verdict of not guilty was read in loud tones by the court clerk.

The tears of joys were those of Norris and his wife. As soon as the verdict rang out in the court room, Norris stood at his seat where he was surrounded by his wife, their two sons and a circle of friends. There was a wan smile on his lips but he showed no emotion until his attorney, Marvin Simpson, shook his hand. He embraced Simpson and wept.

Chipps' Son In Tears

The other tears were in the eyes of a small brown-eyed boy who has sat throughout the trial on the side of the state. He is 14 year old Dexter Chipps, whose father was killed by Norris.

When asked about the verdict, tears came to his eyes and he choked up. Later he said:

"I'm so sorry for mother. It will hurt her."

The boy was alone of all his family and as the great crowd passed around to shake the freed man's hand, the lad walked slowly out, virtually unnoticed.

The verdict came after 14 days of argument and testimony which was ended with a heated appeal by William McLean of Fort Worth, one of the special prosecutors, who said, as he pointed his finger at the jury, "if you send him out to kill again, he's your criminal, not mine."

"I call him a pistol packing parson," shouted McLean, and these words were ringing in the defendant's ears as the jury filed out.

Jury Out Little Over Hour

The great crowd refused to leave the court room. The jury went out at 4:49 p. m. Just before 6 p. m. they announced they had reached a verdict. Judge, defendant and lawyers were absent. Judge and lawyers were quickly located but it was more than half an hour before Norris could be found. He was finally located in the lobby of his hotel with his body guard, Fred Holland, former policeman.

"I've been out for a walk," said Norris as he came into the room.

The jury which had been waiting with their verdict for 45 minutes then came in.

"We, the jury, find the defendant, J. Frank Norris not guilty as charged," said the verdict.

Two Women Applaud Verdict

Two women on the front row applauded lightly. The judge rapped for order. "Mr. Sheriff, arrest any one who does that again," said the judge.

By this time, hands from every direction had been pushed in the direction of Norris and he was the center of a dense eddy of friends who moved slowly about him as he moved slowly toward the door.

It was Norris' third acquittal on a criminal charge. He was indicted in 1912 and 1913 on charges of arson and perjury in connection with the burning of his Fort Worth church and parsonage.

M. G. Cox Delivers Pythian Address Midlothian Lodge

Subscribers to the Pythian Banner-Knight were given a real treat this week when the current issue came in containing a very fine address delivered by M. G. Cox, attorney, before the Midlothian Lodge Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Cox in this address is at his best and he expresses his devotion to Pythianism as the orator on this occasion. The Herald regrets that the address is of such length that we cannot carry it in full.

Mr. Cox is an active Pythian worker and is well known in the lodge circles throughout the state.

Knights who have not read this address should procure a copy of this paper and read it. And better, they should subscribe for this splendid paper edited by Knight Gresham at Temple.

Pastor To Tell Who Is Entitled To A Christian Funeral

Much interest attaches to the announcement of E. S. Hutcherson, pastor of the Baptist church that on next Sunday night, January 30 he will tell his position on "Who is entitled to a Christian funeral."

This position is advertised in his paper as well as in display space in this issue. It develops that the pastor has been criticised by his attitude in the past and he says he will state his position.

Members as well as those who do not belong to his church will be interested in the statement he is to make on Sunday night just preceding his sermon.

Too Much "Acid?"

Excess Uric Acid Gives Rise to Many Unpleasant Troubles.

AUTHORITIES agree that an excess of uric acid is primarily due to faulty kidney action. Retention of this toxic material often makes its presence felt by sore, painful joints, a tired, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backache and headache. That the kidneys are not functioning right is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Thousands assist their kidneys at such times by the use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. Doan's are recommended by many local people. Ask your neighbor!

HOPELESS

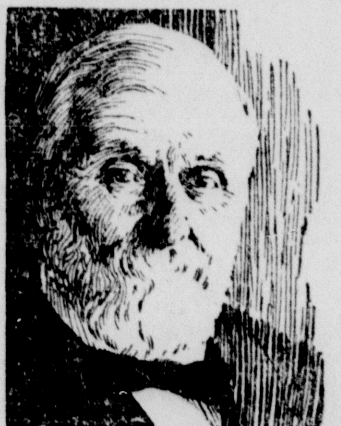

Weak, Thin, Nervous
Woman Gets Strong, Gains Weight.

Mrs. L. N. Crawford, Jr., of Logansport, La., writes: "I felt perfectly hopeless. Life wasn't worth living. It seemed. I felt like giving up but, you know, a woman with a family just can't do that. I was weak, thin and nervous. I tried so many things but didn't get better. Finally I asked my husband to get me some Cardui. After I had taken three bottles, I was like a new person."

"I gradually resumed my work around the house and went places. I quit suffering. Now I am strong, in good weight, and feel fine. Thousands of women have been helped by Cardui. In a similar way, in the last 45 years."

CARDUI

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but each dose helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens

PASTOR NAMES DEBT CAMPAIGN DIRECTORS

JNO. L. DENSON HEADS ORGANIZERS FOR BAPTIST CONQUEST CAMPAIGN

Dr. John L. Denson was named general organizer for the Baptist forces here for the Baptist Conquest Campaign in Texas to raise funds to retard the debt on Baptist institutions.

The list of appointments to conduct the campaign in the church here was announced Sunday morning by the pastor, Rev. E. S. Hutcherson.

Mrs. S. M. Burns was appointed leader for the W. M. U.; Miss Verna King for the B. Y. P. U. and Ray Burke for the Sunday School organization. With the appointments as outlined above every department of the church will be reached in carrying the Conquest message to the membership.

Rev. Hutcherson announces that plans are under way to have both Dr. Geo. W. Truett and Dr. Lee R. Scarborough here at some time during the next few weeks. No definite announcement can be made at this time, however, as the visit of these noted Baptist leaders here is only tentative. In the event they come due notice will be given. Dr. Truett is the leader of the Conquest forces and a number have heard him already in the campaign.

In order to get the information to the people of the church the pastor Sunday distributed a booklet issued by Dr. J. M. Dawson of the First Baptist church in Waco publicity director of the Baptist of Texas in the campaign. This book is a concrete presentation of the aims of the campaign.

It is proposed to raise $6,000,000 to lift the burden of obligation against Baptist schools and hospitals in Texas. Of this amount $2,000,000 is to be raised in cash by the middle of March. When this conquest of finance to conserve the property of Baptist people in Texas is ended the institutions will be free of debt and unhampered in the great service they are rendering to the age in Texas.

It is pointed out that in order to raise this amount of money that the per capita for the Baptist is only about $12. Cameron church will raise the quota set for it, it is said and will do more.

Every member of the church is asked to get a copy of the booklet and become familiar with the Conquest Campaign.

The drive for funds has been pitched upon the high plane of conserving the investments of Baptist people in Texas for more than a century numbering such great schools as the Baylor's and the Seminary at Fort Worth and the great hospital plants over the state.

Likes The Herald And Gives It Praise In Letter To Editor

The Herald is in receipt of the following letter from W. J. Walker, formerly of Cameron. He is City School Superintendent of Gilmer Schools now and is sponsoring a very successful program.

Mr. Walker has been a subscriber and a loyal friend to the Herald for a long time, and we are delighted to pass a word from him to friends in Cameron and Milam County.

Gilmer, Texas January 21, 1927.
Mr. J. B. White,
Editor Cameron Herald,
Cameron, Texas.
My dear Mr. White:

Enclosed you will find my check for $3.00. You will therefore advance my subscription two years and continue to send me your valuable paper. After all the kind things you have said about me during the past several years I would seem indeed very ungrateful did I not continue to pay for the paper that has so steadfastly been my friend.

Having lived in Cameron for such a long time and having there at this time such valuable friends I consider the weekly visits of The Herald a personal letter from them all so you see I can not get along at all without the paper.

It may be of interest to you to know that I am here in Gilmer as City School Superintendent putting over one of the largest programs I have ever undertaken. My work is highly successful and I am receiving the hearty co-operation of all the people. I believe I can truly say that I am appreciated. The thought that I have true friends in dear old Cameron who care makes me try all the harder to make my work outstanding.

Wishing The Herald continued success and with assurances of my warmest regards, I am,

Very sincerely yours,
W. J. WALKER.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Pineapple and a Champion
Ever since Gertrude Ederle asked for stimulating pineapple slices and juice on her swim across the English channel, more emphasis has been placed on the food value and medical qualities of pineapple. Experiments, carried out largely on guinea pigs, have brought to light some interesting facts. Being a juicy fruit there is much moisture in this pineapple. Moisture contains sugar protein, crude fibre, mineral matter and fruit acid besides a high percentage of vitamins. Rich in bromelin, it also is a powerful aid to digestion.

This, applies enormously to canned pineapple which is picked at exactly the right stage of maturity. Pineapple to be eaten in its fresh raw state has to be picked green for shipping and because pineapple draws a large amount of its sustenance from the air when it is thus picked, it does not contain its natural amount of fruit sugar when left to ripen in the hold of a ship.

Miss Ederle drank the pineapple juice while in the water. She also ate some of the fruit, partly as food and partly to relieve her mouth of the rawness caused by long contact with salt water.

Place any amount of left over grated our crushed Hawaiian pineapple in a small dish and keep it in the ice box to use as a piquant touch to desserts or salads to be made the following day. For filling the center of apples to be baked after the core has been removed, nothing is more delicious than pineapple.

The left over pineapple also makes a delicious sauce for pudding or ice cream if heated with a little additional sugar and thickened with the required amount of flour or corn starch.

Everyone says— "Buick is Reliable"

Buick reliability is one reason why the majority of new Buicks every year are purchased by old Buick owners.

Buick is the car with the Sealed Chassis, which encases every operating part inside an iron or steel housing, to keep out dirt.

Buick is the car with the high-speed starting motor, for reliability in starting—with mechanical 4-wheel-brakes, for certainty in stopping—and with a six-cylinder, valve-in-head engine, for engine performance that is the envy of the motor car industry.

Buy a Buick! It is a more dependable and more enjoyable motor car.

an unceasing battle to subject nature to his will and wish. Though the battle has now waged for thousands of years nature is still the master of man.Victory is not yet in sight for man but his advance, though slow, is unchecked. Nature may never be entirely under the control of man, who is actually a part of nature, but her many elements are being subdued one by one.Man's greatest struggle with nature has been the prolongation of human life, a thing over which nature for ages held complete and uncontested sway. Science, medicine, education and sanitation as conceived by the genious of the human mind, are successfully driving back the forces of nature toward the lengthening of the average span of life. On the basis of the progress made in the last three decades toward the prolongation of human life we can hope to have an average life span of three-quarters of a century within the next thirty years.The automobile, the railroad, the airship, the telegraph and the radio are exemplifications of man's conquest of nature. Astronomy and archaeology, man's science, have brought with in his kin the universe and the past.Anything man can think of he can do if he works at it long enough. We have abolished the plagues and devastating epidemics of our early history and we shall abolish the diseases which take their toll of human lives today. Nature is surrendering to man inch by inch and is making man greater for the struggle. When the time comes, if it should, when man no longer has to struggle for supremacy to decay of the human mind will be swift and sure.PLEASURES OF MOTORINGIn a multitude of ways man has found the automobile to be a Good Samaritan. In fact it is generally conceded now that the automobile is indispensable to civilized man.Among the good things the automobile is credited with doing for humanity are: It provides him with a valuable transportation auxiliary; it places within his reach a constant source of much pleasure and recreation; it enables him to see more of the country and people beyond the horizon of the community in which he lives; it takes the city man to the country and the rural resident to the city. Then there are the economic benefits of the automobile such as the giving of employment to millions of workmen.Reversing an ancient adage, it is a good wind that blows no ill. The good that the automobile does is great but, like all things, it has its disadvantages.People who save their dollars for a year or even longer to buy an automobile find after the car is bought and paid for that they have neither the time nor the money to motor to every place their motor maps and imaginations beckon them. It is an obvious truth that if every automobile owner responded to the call of the open road as often as he hears it calling him the nation's business and production would suffer a serious slump.JUST AROUND THE CORNERDevelopment and wealth do not come unassisted. It may be around the corner, but some other place will entice it away unless it is gone after.
It is going somewhere and should come to Cameron.A city must be made attractive to both people and capital before it can be successfully developed. Parks andplaygrounds, entertainments for diversion of mind and the best in churches and schools. Opportunities presented such as exceptional musical attraction should not be overlooked. Natural attractions must be augmented and as long as a city is content to remain idle while far less advantages places work, development and prosperity will ever be just around the corner or a little further away.A better understanding and appreciation of the worth to the individual is necessary. With the realization that the city's growth and development means individual growth and development, and more and better opportunities for their children, then will there be greater co-operation. It is difficult to impress too strongly the importance of the work that is necessary to be done.WEATHER PHILOSOPHYA jury condemned the philosopher Socrates to death, but it is not recorded that they were influenced in this by his statement, in the course of his defense: "While a soldier in the Greek army went through the snows of a winter campaign barefoot, and no one ever saw me cross a street of Athens in the summer to get into the shade.The mind of Socrates was never much on the weather. He believed that one would suffer less and accomplish more if he did not bother his brains about the temperature and what it might do to him.

That is still very good philosophy.

mination didn't take hold, study modern children.The largest sapphire in the world

Success=Money=Positions

AND HAVE THEY WON? YOU MUST BE READY

"Things do not just happen in this life, they are brought about." Wishing for desirable positions, more money and more of the good things of life—wishing will not get them—but study, preparation and perseverance will.

"The secret of success in life is for a man or woman to be ready for his or her opportunity when it comes." "Don't wait for opportunity; make it, prepare for it, and it will come."

"It has been said that battles are nearly always won or lost before the conflict begins." Likewise, your success depends upon the preparation you make now.

"If I were twenty, and had but ten years to live," said a great writer and scholar, "I would spend the first nine years accumulating knowledge, and getting ready."

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO ABOUT IT

Will your son or daughter be better prepared for the "Battle of Life when Fall arrives? Will you be ready for a better position as Stenographer, Bookkeeper, or Salesman, and better in the Practical English Branches in August or September.

All of these worth while things can be yours if you enroll for a course—Day or Night—in Walden's Business College.

Study—not Luck or Pull—will take you to the place you desire. Let us help to make your journey easy and rapid to that desired goal—a better position—more money—and more of the good things of life.

A business leader of Louisiana said, "My daughter mastered Bookkeeping and Shorthand in three months under Walden, and was a better bookkeeper than I was—after I had studied eight months—in one of the most popular commercial colleges in the South."

LOW REPAIR COSTS ON CHEVROLET CAR IS SHOWN

Driving a Chevrolet car daily in the rough hilly districts of Missouri for a total repair cost of $23.85 for 20,000 miles of driving over a period of six years is the record attained by Mrs. Olen Gentry of Mill Grove, Mo.

The sturdy endurance of the Chevrolet never was attested better than through its popularity among those who live in the mountainous localities, according to Mrs. Gentry.

In August, 1920, Mrs. Gentry purchased a Chevrolet touring car and in December of 1926, the owner figured that it was about time to buy a new model. "Although my old car is still giving excellent service, I expect to turn it in soon on a new 1927 Chevrolet Coupe," Mrs. Gentry said.

The old car which she is now driving was purchased only after an earlier model Chevrolet had given her steady service from 1916 to 1920. tain country and only cars with powerful motors, combined with staunch Rough, rocky roads feature the mountain construction, are able to withstand the terrific grind of daily use, the owner says.

On account of the weather conditions and the limited time it has been decided by the management to extend the time for subscription payments another week. Many could not get in town to take up their subscription accounts and the paper will go forward again next week.

After February 1st all subscriptions not paid will be discontinued unless arranged for.

During the past ten days a large number of subscribers have come in to take up their accounts and to pay for their paper. We appreciate this attention to the past due accounts. In extending the time until February 1 we are assured that still a larger number will come in and pay. Many do not want to lose their paper and will pay.

In 1925 and 1926 we mailed out no statements. We realized conditions were not as favorable as may have been desired, therefore we carried these over. They cannot continue to be mailed unless paid for and we ask you as a subscriber to LOOK AT THE DATE on your paper and if you are not paid up arrange this week to pay for the paper or it will be discontinued.

WHAT THE CHURCHES ARE DOING

J. H. Garrett

The Missionary preached at Walker's Creek Sunday morning, January 16. He found a good church and saw some of the work of the good pastor, Bro. Odell Jameson. The pastor is publishing a church Bulletin which is very interesting. One of the best B. Y. P. U's in the County is in the Walker's Creek church.

Sunday night January 16 the Missionary preached at Milano, to a very appreciative audience. Milano is the second church in the Association to put Associational Missions in its budget and begin regular monthly remittances to the Associational treasurer, the Cameron church being the first. These two churches are to be commended on this business like way of doing the Lord's work. Doubtless other churches will follow their leadership in the near future. The pastor of this good church is Bro. W. P. Elliott, chairman of the County Executive Committee, he is doing a good work. He now has on-fourth time which is not used by his present churches. Some one-fourth time church in the county would do well to call him as pastor.

The coming of Mr. H. P. Black to the Cameron Baptist church is a distinct asset to the entire Association. Mr. Black is an experienced Sunday School and B. Y. P. U. man, as well as a good musician. He loves the Lord and is willing to be used in the Lord's work wherever needed. He has been appointed chairman of the B. Y. P. U. work of the County for the Conquest Campaign, and is earnestly working at the job. We expect him to be of invaluable service in reviving the Educational work of our churches over the entire county.

On the second Sunday in this month Bro. J. D. Clare, of Lexington, Texas churches. We have not learned whether or not these churches have called preached at Smyrna and Sand Grove Bro. Clare.

The Missionary has been invited to assist in a Revival and Stewardship campaign at Little River Baptist church. The dates for the meeting have not yet been set, but it will likely be held in the near future.

MISSIONARY GARRETT AND HIS WIFE ASSISTING IN THE TRAINING SCHOOL

We all had an agreeable surprise last Monday evening at the opening of our young people's Training School. The weather was bad and this being the first school in some time, it was rather an unknown quantity as to the number who would be present, but we were agreeably surprised to find that sixty were present to get the first lesson in this Training School.

The attendance was good and the spirit of the school was quite gratifying. Everybody was enthusiastic and anxious to get to their class work, and then in the fun period everything was hilarious.

Mr. Black, the Educational Director is the general director of this school. He in council with the pastor and the Missionary has planned the school and they were carrying out the plans in schedule time.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett are ably assisting in this school. Mr. Garrett is teaching the Intermediate Manual to a fine group of boys and girls. Mrs. Garrett is teaching the Junior Manual to the Junior B. Y. P. U. There were about 45 enrolled in these two classes the first night, and Mr. Black has a fine group of our young people in the Senior B. Y. P. U. taking the Senior B. Y. P. U. Manual.

It ought to be understood by the Baptist churches over the county that this is one of the pieces of work expected of Mr. Garrett when he came to our Association. He is a young man and we have all along since decided that the future of our work depends upon the training and developing of our young people. Mr. Garrett is well equipped to teach and to train the

STERLING AND JOHNSON NAMED ON HIGHWAY COM

L. W. KEMP, FORMER CAMERON MAN, DECLINES TO ACCEPT POSITION TENDERED

Friends in Cameron of L. W. Kemp regret that he did not accept the position as highway commissioner tendered by Governor Moody. Mr. Kemp was asked to serve by the Governor and he has many friends here who appreciate the tender to Mr. Kemp and regret that he could not see fit to serve.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 24—R. S. Sterling, Houston capitalist and newspaper publisher, and Cone Johnson, Tyler lawyer, will be confirmed unanimously by the senate as state highway commissioners, all indications here showed today.

Governor Dan Moody announced their appointment shortly before 3 o'clock. Because Moody's fight on alleged irregularities of the first Ferguson highway commission played a majority role in his elevation from attorney general to Texas youngest governor, more interest has been manifested in his highway commission appointments than any others.

Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock a delegation of legislators from West Texas will call on Moody and ask that the third highway commissioner be from West Texas. Moody asked postponement of the conference until that time.

Johnson for more than 30 years has been a political force in Texas. He is a former representative, state senator and under Woodrow Wilson was solicitor general of the state department.

Johnson was temporary chairman of the 1926 state democratic convention and is former national democratic committeeman.

L. W. Kemp of Houston, declined the offer of Governor Dan Moody to name him on the highway commission.

"I was of course gratified by the confidence Governor Moody exhibited in offering me the place," Kemp said. "I declined because of two reasons: I do not care to enter politics; and I could not afford the financial sacrifices entailed by acceptance."

Kemp is representative of the asphalt sales department of the Texas company.

Early in 1925, he was secretary of the Texas municipal and highway contractor's association but lost that post because of his determined fight on alleged irregular acts of the Frank Lanham—Joe Burkett highway commission.

Kemp's activities largely were responsible for the filing of highway contract suits by Dan Moody, who was attorney general. The successful outcome of his suits was a big factor in electing Moody governor.

Upon Moody's election, Kemp was regarded as many political observers as the logical highway commission chairman. Seven of the nine members of the house investigating committee as individuals recommended his appointment of the committee. Kemp directed the committee in its inquiry into highway department acts.

Business & Professional Women To Hold Important Meeting Tuesday

The Business and Professional Women's Club will meet next Tuesday evening February 1st, at the Country Club House, at 7:30 o'clock. A Val-young people of any church, and then he is ably assisted by his gifted young wife who attends most every service with him, and is willing to go with him night after night and teach these classes.

It might be said just here that between the class periods in our school we are having a "fun period". Mr. Garrett has charge of that hour, and in last night's program there was not a half minute of dull time, but the youngsters were hilarious from the beginning to the close.

It will be a blessing to any church in the Association to invite the Missionary and his wife to come and spend a week with them in training their young people. Invite him to come and then follow his lead when he gets there and your church will be in better shape.

entire feature will be used, and a chicken dinner served.

Important business will come before the club and a full attendance is desired and all past dues are asked to be paid up.

TEN BAYLOR ATHLETES ARE KILLED IN GRADE CROSSING AT ROUND ROCK SATURDAY

Round Rock, June 22.—Death rode with the Baylor university basketball team Saturday on its trip from Waco to Austin in the big Baylor university bus and by a single turn of life's cards claimed the lives of ten players and injured a number of others.

Ten players were killed and a number of others seriously injured here at noon when the northbound Sunshine Special of the Missouri Pacific, running ten minutes late, struck the big bus at the crossing 50 feet southeast of the passenger station and hurled the automobile 25 feet on the opposite side of the railroad tracks.

The dead:

Jimmie S. Walker of Greenville.
Ivey Foster of Taylor.
W. E. Murray of Gatesville.
Sam Dillow of Fort Worth.
J. Clyde Kelley of Waco.
Merle H. Dudley of Abilene.
Bob Bailey of Lott.
Jack Castellow of Ennis.
Bob Hannah.
William Winchester.

The injured:

Ed Gooch of Ennis.
Fred Acree of Waco.
Wesley Bradshaw of Athens.
Joe Potter of West.
J. G. Berry of Smithville.
The uninjured.
Weir Washam.
Louis Slade.
Keifer Strickland.
Coach Ralph R. Wolf.
J. R. Kane.
Cecil Bean.

Seven of the dead are members of the Baylor basketball team. The remaining three dead are Baylor students.

According to two eye-witnesses of the accident, the bus was coming at a rather rapid speed along the highway southward toward Austin, where the Baylor Bears were scheduled to play the Longhorns that night. When within about twenty-five feet of the tracks, Joe Potter, who was driving the big bus, apparently saw the train coming at high speed down the hill toward the crossing and turned the car in an apparent attempt to move into the space between the passenger station and the tracks.

Yet In Seat

Because of the large size of the bus, it was impossible to clear the tracks ahead of the train the engine hitting the rear of the automobile, telescoping the entire length of the automobile.

The train at the time of the accident was making about 40 to 45 miles an hour and was not brought to a stop until after the engine had passed the Round Rock broom factory, located about 1,000 feet north of the passenger station. The cow catcher of the engine was completely torn away from its moorings while the bus was completely wrecked. Parts of the automobile were strewn all along the railroad right-of-way for more than one hundred feet in front of the passenger station. The front of the big bus was not damaged and Coach Wolf and companions who sat on the front seat were the least seriously injured.

Trunk Takes Bodies On

The northbound Sunshine Special due in Round Rock at 11:49 a. m., was running ten minutes late at the time of the tragedy. Round Rock is not a regular stop for this limited train and the train usually passes through this little town at a high rate of speed.

This train, the crack limited from San Antonio to St. Louis was converted into a funeral train as the bodies of 11 accident victims, said to have been instantly killed, were placed on the baggage car of the train to be taken to Taylor. Injured players were also placed on the train and taken to the Taylor hospital. The train was held for an hour while bodies of the men were picked up from the wreckage.

T. H. Winchester and Bob Hannah, were placed in an ambulance and conveyed to the Martin hospital at Georgetown. They died at the hospital at 1 o'clock within a short time after the ambulance had brought them there.

Top Sheared From Body

Excited, terrified, by the horrible disaster, the residents of Round Rock, who gathered quickly at the scene, helped trainmen of the Missouri Pacific gather the mutilated bodies of the dead players from the wreckage and make hasty preparations for shipment. Those who were seriously injured and given a chance to live were taken into the waiting room of the station, where they were given emergency treatment by physicians called to the disaster immediately.

Pools of blood scattered at various places in the station and on the grounds gave mute testimony of the accident to hundreds of Austin and Georgetown people, who came to the spot of the tragedy within an hour after the accident. The scattered wreckage was also grim evidence of the toll by the reaper who escorted the Bear players on their fatal trip to Austin. Cushions of the bus were strewn everywhere, the top of the big automobile had been sheared from the body and the entire right side was reduced to splinters in the impact.

Mayor Tells of Crash

Mayor W. R. Woolsey of Round Rock was one of two eye-witnesses to the tragic affair. He said he was just returning to his place of business from his home after dinner and witnessed the tragedy as he stood near the post office a few hundred feet away from the crossing.

"I saw the bus coming along at a good rate of speed and heard the train coming down the hill. Then I noticed that the driver of the bus slowed down to about fifteen miles an hour but not quick enough to permit the train to go by ahead of the bus. Apparently seeing that the train would hit the car, the driver, it seemed to me, turned the car slightly to get on the ground between the railroad station and the tracks. The car was so big though, that it got on the track and could not clear it in time to avoid the crash. Then I heard the crash and made a dash for the tracks. There I saw themangled bodies of the victims several of them ground to a pulp almost and heard the groans of those yet alive.

"No one can picture the scene unless they had seen it themselves. It was the most terrible thing that has ever happened in Round Rock."

Another Eye-Witness

Mayor Woolsey's story was corroborated by J. S. Trusdale, operator of a filling station, who was standing on the grounds of the Round Rock passenger station when the locomotive struck the bus.

"The bus was about two-thirds of the way across the track when the impact occurred. The next I knew I saw the bodies of two of the players land on the locomotive pilot with arms clasped—dead. The body of one of the boys was caught under the wheels of the train and ground into a mangled corpse.

"If the driver of the bus had not slowed up for that crossing, the bus would have crossed in time to clear the way for the passenger train, I fully believe."

Aside from the testimony of these two eye-witnesses, information concerning the accident was lacking. The people of Round Rock generally were too excited over the occurrence and had heard that 11 men were instantly killed in the crash. It was stated at the passenger station that no count was made of the number of bodies placed on the train for Taylor because of the rush to secure medical aid for those who still had a chance to live.

Crowd Gathers

The lower limbs of one of the players was severed completely from his trunk. The entire right leg was found several hundred feet away from the crash, while the left foot, severed from the leg at the ankle, was located nearby. The youth's head was crushed and parts of the player's anatomy were collected and placed in a paste board box. The entire scene was too gruesome to relate according to Round Rock residents.

Clothing, grips, jewelry, caps and other valuables belonging to the ill-fated Baylor players was also collected and placed in a heap in the railroad agent's office at Round Rock. There it reposed in a room adjoining the waiting room and the door was locked to prevent the hundreds of curiosity seekers from seeing the mute evidence of the tragedy. Finally two newspapermen secured admittance and a group of friends of the Baylor players identified the clothing of various players of the Baylor squad.

Newspapers and photographers of Austin newspapers and hundreds of motorists gathered at the scene of the accident within an hour after the tragedy occurred. Photographers secured scores of pictures of the wrecked bus and other evidence of the wreck.

Second Accident

Saturday's accident is the second crossing accident that has occurred in this town in the past two years and both in the same manner. Two years ago a Ford car occupied by Mexicans was struck by an International-Great Northern passenger train at the crossing located several hundred yards south of the scene of Saturday's tragedy.

In this accident two years ago five Mexicans were instantly killed.

Recalling this accident and coupling its memory with the sight of today's tragedy caused some of the prominent Round Rock citizens start an agitation for better protection at the two railroad crossings here. One citizen suggested that a bell signal should be placed at the crossing to warn motorists of approaching trains.

Seek Warning Bell

Had there been such a signal there today, the accident which snuffed out ten lives and injured a number of other persons, might not have happened, this citizen declared. He pointed out that the heavy foggy condition of the weather and the misty rain that was falling, prevented a motorist from having a clear view for any distance and because of clouded wind shields.

The bus carried the cream of Baylor's athletic talent.

Walker, Dillow and Hannah were members of the first-string basketball five, while J. Clyde (Abe) Kelley was the outstanding athlete of the Baptist school. Last fall he was named all-Southwestern full back, largely because of his punting ability, and he was captain of the 1927 eleven. Kelly was a star catcher in baseball, and played guard in basketball.

Captain Louis Slade, basketball center, and Keifer Strickland, forward and the scoring star of the team, were not injured.

Wesley Bradshaw, who was injured is well known in eastern professional football. In 1925, he played with Jim Thorpe's Rock Island (Illinois) eleven. In 1922, he was all-Southwestern quarter back of the championship Baylor eleven.

Coach Wolf, uninjured, is rated Baylor's greatest track star of all time. He specialized in the dashes.

The train, the "Sunshine Special," stopped within half a mile of the crossing, and backed to the crossing. The train crew saw four men extricate themselves from the wreckage.

Part of the body of one man was wedged beneath the cowcatcher.

Washum Jumps To Safety

With exception two of the injured who were started in an ambulance for Georgetown, the dead and injured were placed in the baggage car and taken to Taylor.

Weir Washum, diminutive quarterback of the 1926 football team, saved his life by jumping from the back of the truck.

About the smashed automobile were bits of green and gold cloth from the jerseys the Baylor players would have worn tonight as they entered the gymnasium at Austin. Bloody clothes and even more gruesome reminders of the tragedy were in evidence.

The inhabitants of this small town were shocked almost inarticulate by the crash, the second of its type within two years. Five Mexicans were killed two years ago at a crossing near here.

W. R. Woolsey, Round Rock mayor, an eye-witness to the crash, said that Coach Wolf was driving the bus.

Potter had started to drive the truck across the track, apparently before they saw the train approaching, Woolsey said.

"When it became evident that there would be a crash, the driver turned the machine and the train 'sideswiped' it.

The bus, painted in Baylor university's colors, was practically demolished.

The other players, caught on the front of the speeding engine, were carried a distance of about 100 feet. Each had his arms locked around the other, indicating death had been instantaneous.

Ambulances Delayed

An ambulance took Winchester and Hammer to a hospital in Georgetown. Both died about one o'clock.

Others injured and killed in the wreck were placed on the train and taken to Taylor. Citizens of Round Rock were accepted as volunteer nurses and boarded the hastily equipped hospital train.

Telephone service was almost demoralized due to heavy rains Saturday morning and continued slow rains during the day and as a consequence, the ambulances called were delayed in arriving.

Waiting Room Made Hospital

Switchmen and other employees around the depot were engaged practically all the remainder of the day following the accident in the gruesome duty of collecting organs from human bodies, strewn around the scene of the accident.

Blood stood in pools, whitened by the rain which fell in slow sheets.

The stained waiting room of the depot resembled a war hospital with its bloody coats and quilts.

Uniforms of the men were kept in a locker room and friends were allowed to examine them.

Students Gather

Students from Texas university here and Southwestern university at Georgetown, about 30 miles from Austin, gathered in great numbers. Many of them were intimate friends of the dead.

The Sunshine Special, late ten minutes, was detained an hour before it started with its load of death.

Round Rock townspeople and countrymen milled in silent throngs around the depot hours after the bodies had been removed.

Bodies Mangled

Kelley, star punter, was horribly mangled. The leg which he used to boot the pigskin far down the field was severed from the torso.

All the bodies were so mangled that identification was temporarily impossible.

A railroad telegraph operator, until Friday stationed at Round Rock, predicted the day he left, 24 hours before the crash: "There's going to be an awful accident at this crossing," according to a Round Rock merchant.

The town tonight is silent.

"This awful thing has thrown a shroud over Round Rock," one resident said. "We couldn't have been more shocked or scared if a bomb had been thrown in the middle of the street."

Meanwhile in Austin a cold and silent "gym" is ready for a basketball game which will not be played.

Members of the Texas university squad were among those who came here from Austin to pay respects to the dead.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

It Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens
So Naturally Nobody
Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your curls or a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

Drink Water If Kidneys Bother

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and awaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

SYSTEM CHOKED

Texas Was Helped by Use of Black-Draught.

Mr. James W. Burnett, who lives on Rural Route No. 4, Whitney, Texas is a great believer in Theodor's Black-Draught for the relief of such common ills as indigestion and constipation. He writes: "Since I first found out about Black-Draught, I have never been without it in the house. For several years, I had been a sufferer with indigestion. Occasionally, my system would become thoroughly choked with poison, and I would have a real sick spell. Now I ward them off by being forehanded, and taking Black-Draught before they come. Instead of after."

"We all use Black-Draught in our home, for constipation and indigestion."

Get a package today, and try Theodor's Black-Draught the next time you are constipated. Sold everywhere. One cent a dose.

MRS. ALTON S. CLARK DIES AT LAMPASAS

The remains of Mrs. Alton Strayhorn Clark, wife of L. C. Clark, deceased, were accompanied by relatives to Cameron Monday afternoon, where Henn and Meyer undertakers of Rockdale, took charge of the body and conveyed it to Rockdale Baptist church where funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Hall. The body was laid to rest beside those of her husband and son, in old city cemetery at Rockdale.

Mrs. Clark was born February 2, 1867 at Georgetown, where she spent most of her childhood. She passed away Sunday evening, January 23 at Lampasas, at 11 o'clock at the home of her son, L. C. Clark, Jr. She was married to Lee Clark at the First Baptist church at Georgetown in 1885 by Dr. Jeff Ray, who was her pastor.

This happy union was blessed with seven children two of whom preceded her. Those remaining are all consistent Christians, emulating the life of their mother, whom they can rise up and call blessed.

Early in her girlhood she was converted and united with the Baptist church where she remained a loyal member for over forty years. All thru these years her interest continued in the upbuilding of God's work.

Mrs. Clark was one of those sweet spirited souls who are a benediction to every one. She was never so engrossed with her daily duties but that she would willingly lay them aside for the Master's work. She was an angel of light to those in need; adopting herself to any inconveniences which are so noticeable in the homes of want where she frequently ministered. As long as she was able she took an active part in all the departments of church work.

For the past several years she was in bad health. All through her suffering she was patient and her faith in God grew stronger. She made her home with her children, visiting them at different times. They delighted in ministering to every need of their mother.

Beside her children she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Pipkin of Waco and a brother, Dr. Strayhorn of San Antonio.

The beautiful floral offerings bore tribute to the loving regard in which she was held; knowing God in a vital way. She has gone to live with Him in that land where the roses never fade from the cheek and the lips never murmur farewell.

Relatives to accompany the remains were: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ramsell of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. Leverette Fitzpatrick of Waco, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Davis, of Waco, daughters. Mr. and Mrs. James Clark of Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Clark of Lampasas, son in whose home she died. Mrs. Alice Pipkin of Waco, and only sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nolt of Waco, nephew. Mrs. Fitzpatrick of Waco. Relatives were met in Cameron by Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Clark and daughter, Miss Mina Clark, Mrs. I. P. Sessions and Miss Mary Donaldson of Rockdale and also many friends in Rockdale, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Morrison, Mrs. Tiff Moore and Clark Kelley of Cameron. L. C. Clark, deceased, was a brother of Mrs. I. P. Sessions of Rockdale and W. I. Clark of Cameron.

MRS. FRED WIDEMAN DIES

Mrs. Fred Wideman, 54, died at the family residence here Sunday evening at 6:10 o'clock, January 23, 1927, following an illness of about 5 months.

Mrs. Wideman has been a resident of Cameron for five years, moving here from Washington County, where she had resided practically all of her life. Her death brought to hundreds who knew her, profound sorrow and those whom it was their privilege to know loved her for her wonderful traits of character.

Mrs. Wideman was a member of the Lutheran church. Funeral services were conducted Monday from the family residence with Rev. E. S. Hutcherson, pastor of the Baptist church officiating, with interment in the North Elm Cemetery, Green Bros., undertakers, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss 6 children, Ernest and Will Wideman, Mrs. Jim McGoldrick, Mrs. Jake Richard, Mrs. Joe Kuhn, Miss Lona Wideman, all of Cameron; also one brother and four sisters, Dick Vessler, Hedersville, Texas; Mrs. Annie Kelm, Falls County; Mrs. Liza Rithler, Mrs. Sophia Misser, and Mrs. Lena Strickland.

The Herald joins with others in extending sympathy to the bereaved ones.
